

My Beloved Sister

How do I say to you in words
The unspoken love only you and I have heard
We have dried each others tears
Felt each others fears
Together we have traveled the streets of darkness
Guided by a love living only within us
I say to you my beloved sister
These spoken words not one breath be unheard
No more tears shall you shed
Keep strong and embrace your life ahead
For a light lives within you
Carried only by those GOD has chose
You may not understand
The reason or right
If not I held in your hands so tight
My traveled streets of darkness
No light it would have known

Katherine Mathews

Copyright ©2007 Katherine Mathews

Your Journey Of Life Is Sometimes Not Understood

Weakness that consumes your soul when traveling down a road
That seems to have no end
Uncertainty of the paths chosen
Where only your footprints remain.
Thunder of a storm that takes you to a place
Of self-destruction disguised as a place of refuge
Similarity of the trees surrounding you
That leads to a road already once traveled
Strength from within your mind that empowers you
To envision the end.
Faith which has awoken when your footprints are not seen
On the path that you have chose.
Calmness of a night when the only sound heard
Are the stars dancing above you and providing a glimpse of light
Unique flowers whose petals drift in the wind
That helps to guide you to the end
It is not until then that you will understand
Your Journey of Life....

Katherine S Mathews

Copyright ©2007 Katherine Mathews

Forever Held

When I held you for the very first time
I had to count all your fingers and toes
Tears immersed from within me while touching your skin
That was only a few seconds old
You opened your eyes and gazed into mine
And at that precise moment
You became the depth of my soul
I prayed for you oh so long ago
Asking God to give me someone to hold
A family was born that will never be apart
You will be loved into eternity
And forever held within my heart

Katherine S Mathews

Copyright ©2007 Katherine Mathews